Students Protest C.I.A. Recruiting

ITHACA, N.Y., March 13 (AP) — Nineteen Cornell University students were detained, and one non-student was arrested today during a sit-in to protest the presence on campus of Central Intelligence Agency recruiters.

James Lowenstein, an unemployed Ithaca resident, was the only protester arrested by the Cornell security police. He was charged with trespassing and released on $50 bond.

The 19 students were detained by the campus police, who referred their cases to the university's judicial administrator. The dean of students, David Drinkwater, said the action taken against them would probably not include suspension.

About 40 people blocked the entrance to the University Career Center for several hours.
